How to choose exams to take abroad

To facilitate your research, you can download the list of agreements from the School's website, where you will find useful links for choosing courses.

Once you have selected the exams you wish to take abroad, you must obtain equivalence from your UNIFI professor. This form is not necessary for free-choice exams.

If you are interested in an internship/final project work, you must check the Host Institution website to see if there are any internship/final project work projects available for your study course or contact the International Relations Office, which will put you in touch with the responsible of the agreement to ensure that there is a real possibility of doing an internship at your selected Host Institution.
